For my first design I wanted a simple home page that showed all the information clearly and neatly. Because my graphic design is so different from my illustrations I wanted to separate them and put one image to represent them. I wanted to use a font that had a fantasy feel to it because that's how a lot of my art also feels.

For my second design I wanted to highlight one of my illustrations and use it as the main image for the home page. I noticed a lot of artist websites used pieces of their art for the home page like Alex Fisher. I also wanted this design to be more colorful and have a more interesting layout for the navigation.
https://www.alexfisherdesign.ca/

For my third design I was inspired by Jennifer Xiao's artists website. Like Xiao's website I wanted a playful design that was fun to look at and navigate. I wanted a similar color palette to my art so I kept a fall color scheme with oranges and greens. I also plan to have an animation for this design. When someone clicks on the hamburger menu the guy sitting on the menu will fall.
https://www.jenniferxiao.com/comics